“Fangs for the Memories”
“DRACULA” LIVE RADIO PLAY
BRINGS BACK THE THRILLS IN TIME FOR HALLOWEEN

FORT LAUDERDALE – Just in time for Halloween, the Arts Radio Network Theater Season of live radio plays at the Broward Center for the Performing Arts presents Dracula on Friday and Saturday, October 28 and 29 at 7:30 p.m.

This recreation of the classic radio play based on Bram Stoker’s classic delivers thrills as the dashing, mysterious Count Dracula takes up residence in London and begins to wreak havoc, sucking the blood of young women and turning them into vampires. When he sets his sights on Mina, the daughter of a prominent doctor, vampire-hunter Van Helsing is enlisted to put a stop to the count’s never-ending bloodlust.

Dracula brings the golden age of radio to glorious life on stage featuring some of South Florida’s finest actors. The story has long been a favorite for radio adaptation, most notably as the inaugural broadcast of The Mercury Theatre on the Air, one of the greatest radio programs of the 1930s, with Mercury Theater co-founder Orson Welles in the title role.

Performances are held in the Abdo New River Room at the Broward Center where, starting one hour prior to the performance and during intermission, sumptuous sandwiches, salads, snacks and desserts are available for purchase with convenience walk-up service. A full cash bar is also available.

Presented by the Broward Center for the Performing Arts, Arts Radio Network Theatre and WLRN, the series continues with holiday performances of Miracle on 34th Street (December 16-17); The Wizard of OZ (February 3-4), Strangers on a Train (March 10 -11) and a special Mother’s Day weekend production, which is yet to be announced (May 13 and 14).
